Physically Censoring

Use a black permanent marker pen to cover inappropriate images on covers and/or plasticised pages.
Use a felt tip pen to black out an inappropriate word, ensuring that it does not go through the page and affect the text behind it.
Use biro to substitute a word so that it remains in context.
Use a felt tip pen/permanent marker to draw clothing in order to make images acceptable ensuring that it does not go through the page and affect the text behind it.
Where larger sections need censoring, ensure pages are glued together and stapled at the edges.
Do not use tippex or cut pages out.
